The Italian Centre for International Development (ICID) organizes a one-day workshop to present recent research on international development on June 28th, 2016 in Ravello (Amalfi Coast, Italy).

The workshop, organized within the 20th ICABR Conference, will be a thriving platform for students, practitioners and academics to engage with one another and share innovative ideas on issues related to international development.

The workshop will explore three broad topics: vulnerability, social protection and labour market; the linkages between trade and wages; and violence and women's empowerment.

The workshop will also aim at identifying key information gaps relating to these themes, thereby helping to guide future research efforts.
